PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

A YEAR TO REMEMBER

The dimensions of the Eastern campus are changing. A first impression of such comes from new buildings or from dreams still to be solidified in brick and stone. A second awareness may be of the increase in numbers of individuals coming and going across the walkways and shortcuts of the campus. The new laboratories and classrooms could catch the attention of many. Library holdings will amaze the uninitiated. New tools for teaching and learning will attract the attention of others.

These are merely the means. The physical items and numbers are only indicative of a more significant changing dimension, the student. As you journey through this yearbook you will note how a capable staff has captured the human qualities of its peers. You will be impressed with students' intent on a major college mission. You will see evidences of the out-of-class activity contributing to developmental goals. You will see examples of initiative that accomplished results and decisions that moved organizational objectives forward. In these pages will be seen groups at work, a play in progress, committees in collaboration, or teams in lively competition. Here will be memories for a lifetime. Here will be recollections of many achievements. Here is a year of most significant student awareness and growth. This year could well mark a prelude to Eastern's future potential as a higher institution. Only students and faculty can lift a college to true greatness. Many of such ingredients will be seen on the pages to follow. This will be a "Year to Remember."

Don S. Patterson
President

Dr. Don S. Patterson and Mrs. Patterson

Virginia Dickinson, head of the French Department, died January twentieth, 1964, in her forty-third year at Eastern. The school has lost a great teacher. We miss her. She was generous and kind as any close friend. She made our problems her own. How many were solved because of her determination and energy! As one of her students has said, "She was always marching off to help me fight my battles."

Miss Dickinson could criticize without leaving a sting. She made us confident that we could live up to her expectations. We have had many teachers that we like, but Miss Dickinson was the teacher we loved.

There will not be another Miss Dickinson. Her originality, wit and zest for new ideas and lively plans made her unique. She was never afraid to speak courageously when she was convinced that speech was necessary. She encouraged the same integrity in us. We will not forget Miss Dickinson.

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

The staff of the 1964 Kinnikinick presents to you, the students, this book of memories.

Our purpose was the creation of something unique in annuals. After much thought, and some rather heated debate, we decided that the only theme should be the students themselves, recorded informally in the total experience of the college year. Most of the pictures are candid and I'm sure that you will be surprised, maybe even pleasantly horrified, to discover that our photographers were around when you least suspected it!

At this time, as editor, I would like to personally thank the wonderful staff that worked on this book. They worked as a team united. They worked days and nights that sometimes seemed endless. They gave up dates, study time, sleep, and even class time to meet deadlines. Our photographers worked relentlessly to produce pictures of top quality. Our advisor, Pat McManus, gave us many ideas and moments of encouragement, and we appreciate his help very much.

Many thanks also to the students and faculty for their cooperation and for providing us with the necessary materials, not the least of which were themselves.

And so the final deadline. Memories are fleet creatures of the mind. I hope that we have captured some of the rarer species for you in the pages of the 1964 Kinnikinick, and that they will serve you well for many, many years.

Dean of Students Daryl Hagie and his secretary, Carol Hill, have a pleasant moment listening to Reece Kelly explain the last Council meeting.

Dean of Women Mrs. Virginia Dressler and her secretary, Mrs. Eleanor Best, prepare another memo for the women's dorms.

Dean of Men Al Ogden and his secretary Mrs. Jackie Nielsen, polish off the week's correspondence.

Kenneth Kennedy, director of admissions, goes over admittance requirements with a prospective student.

"I'm sorry, we have no more job openings this quarter," is the too often reply from Arden E. Berg, personnel director.

Even coffee breaks mean work, but at a more relaxed pace, for Glen E. Maier, director of general academic services, and George J. Kabat, dean of instruction.

Head of the placement Office is Raymond M. Giles and his secretary Mrs. Gambrel. This office also handles extension and correspondence.

Sometimes a letter is the only contact a student has with his family. The campus mail service works long hours sorting and delivering letters to anxious students.

Student Union

DIVISION of Education

The Instructional Materials Center is one of the busiest offices on campus. Textbooks, films, slides and all kinds of projection equipment are available to faculty and students in the IMC.

The IMC offers students a pleasant atmosphere for research and study.

Education

Campus School

The Campus School is one of the finest educational tools in the state. Most of the pupils are children of the College faculty. Student teachers not only have the opportunity of observing excellent professional teachers conduct classes but also do some practice teaching during the quarter.

Dr. Stearns ponders a difficult question in a philosophy class.

A student slips into class a few moments before the bell ...

Dr. Loretta Fretwell takes a moment from her schedule of teaching and practicing psychology to offer some friendly advice to a student.

Department of psychology

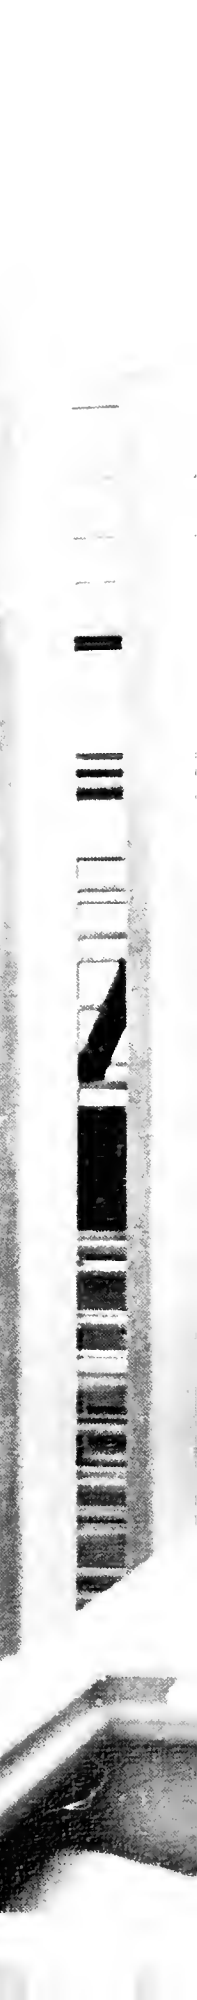

"When did you say that coffee would be ready?"

Department of Science

The dictionary defines science as the systematized knowledge derived from observation, study, and experimentation carried on in order to determine the nature or principles of what is being studied. The students in this division observe, study, and experiment — a never ending process, with sometimes little noticeable result. But in their work, they hold the future—the future we will live.

physics

Students of the Physics department spend long hours in the laboratory applying a vast amount of classroom information to practical experiments. We may not have another Einstein in our midst, but these students are destined to make their contribution to society.

Chemistry

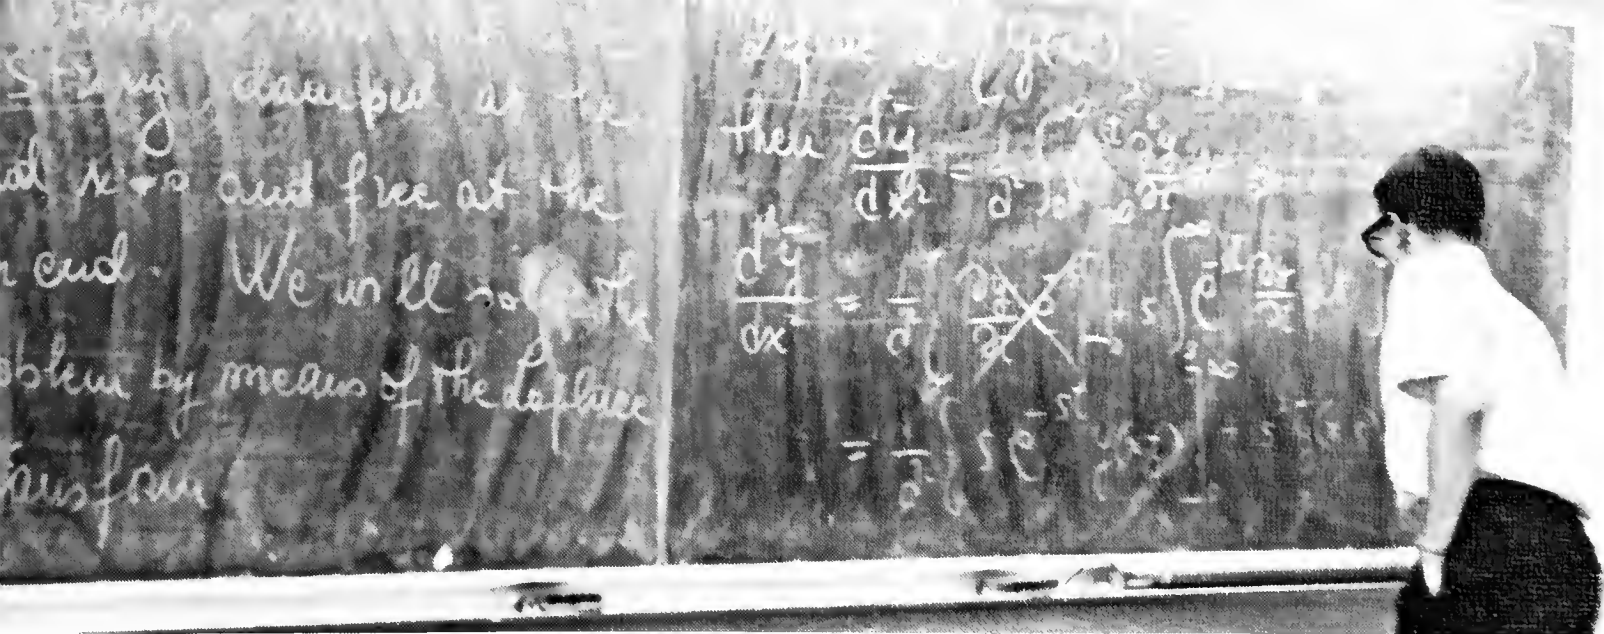

Chemistry is a science from which many questions from the past, present and the future may be answered. The Chemistry department at Eastern demands many hours of laboratory from its students and whether Frank Dolittle is on the brink of a new discovery or just brewing a perfect pot of coffee, we know both will be helpful to the chemistry student.

BIOLOGY

Students at Eastern have always sought knowledge about the birds and bees and the Biology department is happy to help them in their search. Bill Timm is beginning with observation of the lower forms of life. Or are they studying him? Hmmmm.

Mathematics

Cartography

Cartography is the art of making maps or charts. Eastern students have excellent equipment for this job.

Geography

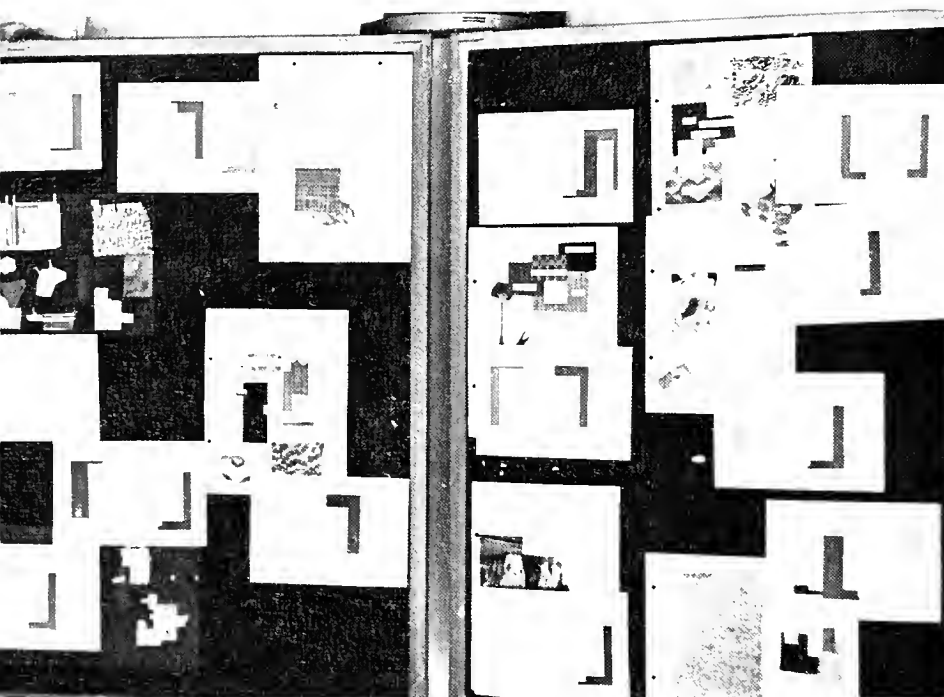

Geography is the descriptive science dealing with the earth's surface, its division into continents and countries, and the climate, plants, animals, natural resources, inhabitants, and industries of the various divisions.

Geology

During the last few years, the Geology department has added such technological equipment as an x-ray diffraction machine and a power device for splitting rocks so that their interior structure can be examined.

home Economics

Division of Fine and Applied Arts

Home economics, industrial and practical arts make up the department of Fine and Applied Arts.

Home Economics — the art of homemaking, including nutrition, clothing, budgeting, and child care.

Industrial Arts — the technical arts and skills used in industry.

Whether or not the students in this division teach their skills, their knowledge of them will be invaluable in future life.

Dr. Lloyd Vandenberg of the Industrial Arts department demonstrates a product from the newly acquired blueprint machine.

Industrial Arts student Doug Hudson applies the fine touch to a lathe-turning project.

Architectural drawing student Sam Adams concentrates on one of the intricate drawings that go into a finished plate.

Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation

The conditioning of young bodies, sportsmanship, and the enjoyment of physical activity is the job of the Physical Education Department. Although few college students enjoy taking the required courses, most admit that it does them some good.

Most athletes work out at some time with weights. By lifting weights, they can strengthen and tone muscles. Firm, well-controlled muscles aid in the performance of athletic endeavors.

Emile LeFavre demonstrates the correct method of lifting weights. He uses a mirror to watch his form.

The art of fencing offers an exciting, almost dangerous challenge for the beginner. After he gains some experience, the fencer challenges his classmates to a duel.

Basketball — one of the many sports that girls as well as boys excel in.

Students returning to Eastern during the fall quarter may find many joys in numerous ways.

Some enjoy returning to the campus to renew old acquaintances and make new friends.

while others wonder at the improvements that have been introduced to the school. One event that is applicable to all is the buying of new clothes for the school year. R.O.T.C. students are even more delighted because they get theirs for free.

Sometimes the uniforms don't quite fit or maybe the shoes are too long or short but nevertheless it is a tradition at Eastern.

ROTC achievement day was the culmination of a hard year's work by Eastern cadets. Medals and trophies were awarded those who earned them and a good time was had by all.

ROTC BLOOD-DRIVE

Usually, Eastern students don't take kindly to being needled, but when it's for a good cause, such as the ROTC blood drive, they'll even take it lying down. Of course it has to be in the right vein! They bled a total of 224 pints, which, although it didn't break any records, should keep Eastern's blood bank account in the red.

ART

An octopus swimming in whipped cream? No, it's part of a plaster sculpture in the Art department.

The artist's world is one of color, form and line. Hidden behind a myriad of canvasses and easels, art student Ed Stachofsky composes a creation in oils.

And here we have an example of pop art.

"Well, back to the drawing board!"

The first step in producing a play is to find the right cast. Individual tryouts are the best means of choosing the players.

Dramatics — the art of performing or producing plays; the play being a literary composition that tells a story, usually of human conflict, by means of dialogue and action, which is performed on the stage by actors.

Next is the problem of rehearsals. Finding a time when everyone can attend is sometimes rather difficult on an active college campus.

Dramatics

Drama

Besides the actors, the behind-the-scene crew is of equal importance. Makeup, costumes, fitting — all are necessary to a successful production.

Those last few minutes before your cue to go on can sometimes be very tense.

Drama

*Even a good play must have publicity.
Failure to do so in the campus newspaper caused actors to picket the publication, and very effectively, too.*

Doctor Manzo, director of choral activities, realized a great achievement when his Collegians were asked to tour the South Pacific at the expense of the USO.

This picture of the "Collegians" was taken just prior to their departure to Japan, Korea, and the Far East where they were on tour with the USO Shows. They are Jim Andrews, Karen Richardson, Walter Ryals, Marcia Beldon, Roger Graham, Nancy Luther, Don Ricks, Diane Florence, Frank De Miero, Judy Barton, Barry Tilton, Trudy Thompson, and Ron Jones. Seated at the piano is Dorothy Roberts.

The Uncalled Four, Roger Graham, Barry Tilton, Ron Jones, and Frank DeMiero also performed as a separate quartet while on tour. They are accompanied by Marcia Beldon at the piano.

USO Tour

On their tour for the United Service Organization, the Collegians visited the South Pacific. Here they met many new and interesting people and customs. This was an experience that they will not soon forget.

Speech students practice speaking together orally under the direction of Miss Alice Moe.

Speech

Speech — expression or communication of thoughts and feelings by spoken words, vocal sounds and gestures. This ability the majority of us take as a natural thing. Many, however, find difficulty in the formation and expression of words. The role of the speech department is to aid those students.

Miss Alice Moe works closely with those in need of speech corrections. She has done much to help her students gain confidence in speaking before groups.

John Reed takes his turn at the "board."

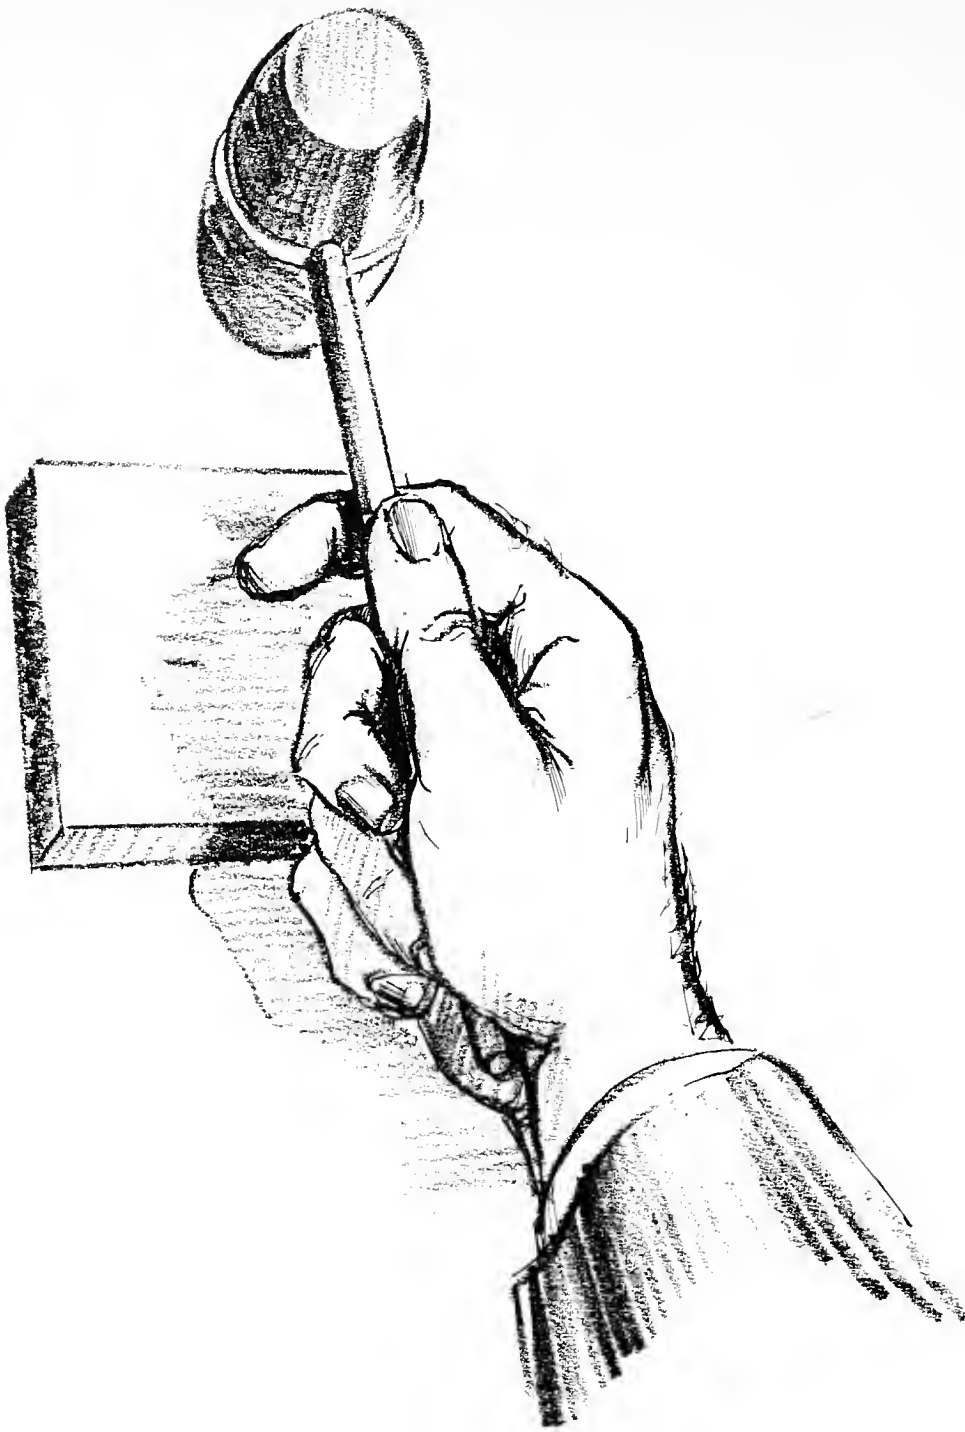

KEWC

KEWC, the voice of the campus, is operated entirely by students. This year the station changed over to FM broadcasting and now covers the Cheney area in addition to the student union and the dorms on campus. The staff also publishes a daily newsletter, which carries the weather and short news items of interest at Eastern. Mr. Howard Hopf is adviser to the station.

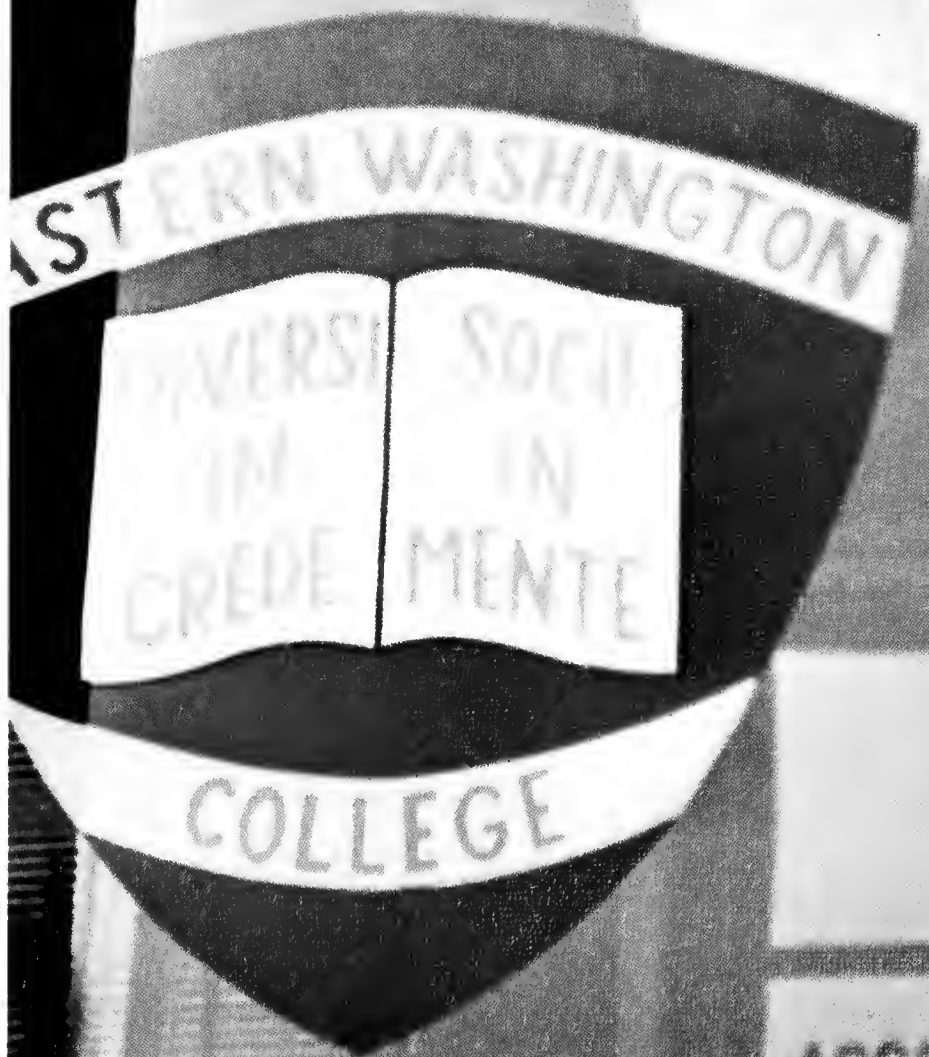

The KEWC radio tower juts into the clear sky above the Student Union, broadcasting the voice of the students to the surrounding community.

ASB president Reece Kelly

ASB President's Message

Eastern offers challenges that demand from its students the utmost intellectual ability and determined perseverance. These challenges offer a multitude of rewards: freedom through knowledge, maturity through acceptance of responsibility, keener enjoyment of life through a more nearly complete self realization, and, finally, the acquisition of skills leading to a profession that promises even greater challenges and rewards for achievement.

Eastern's college community is an environment of activity and excitement characterized by growing, searching minds attempting to attain that nebulous concept we call knowledge: knowledge of the creative arts, of the sciences, and of the political, social, cultural, and economic aspects of our own society and of other societies, past and present. Concomitant with acquiring this knowledge, Eastern's students attain an appreciation of and practical skills in these various areas.

Although the acquisition of knowledge and intellectual development is emphasized, students at Eastern are also encouraged to develop their abilities to participate intelligently and actively as citizens in the college community in making responsible decisions and carrying them into action. This takes the form of self-direction through student government, the student judiciary system, and the student's own personal life.

This 1964 yearbook, as all yearbooks, can only give posterity a momentary glimpse of the ever flowing stream of events, ideas, and personalities that continue to make Eastern a fertile field of challenges to be harvested into rich rewards by the enterprising, industrious, and able student.

Coach Red Reese

SCARLET ARROW Banquet

William Bryan (Red) Reece, who won acclaim as “one of the winningest basketball coaches in the nation,” this spring ended his brilliant 32-year coaching career at Eastern.

Red not only coached basketball, but football and track as well. Before coming to EWSC in 1930, he coached at Cashmere High School in 1925 and at North Central High School in Spokane. In all, he has coached over 850 basketball games.

The highlight of his career came in 1945-46 when his team captured 27 straight wins and a Conference championship.

He had a spectacular record of wins. During the 1959-60 season he won his 500th game. “Winning the 500th didn’t seem any different than winning the first, tenth or the one-hundredth,” said Reece. “So many of the boys made it possible, especially the boys that season.”

But perhaps the best indication of Red’s success is the success of the hundreds of men that he has taught and coached. Nearly a hundred of them are coaching in the state of Washington alone.

Gary Riece and Dennis Lazzar practice handstands.

Bombs away!

What would college students do without peanut butter and crackers.

This voracious pair, Peggy Immel and Sue Pettis prove that some off-campus women can cook.
